

There was no doubt about it...

...they were now looking for a cereal killer

Mummy carrot warned the baby carrots...

...if she caught them playing with the peeler again, she'd skin them alive

After a liquid fertiliser lunch...

...the pumpkin was desperate for a leek

The sweet potatoes were led to the chopping board...

...like yams to the slaughter

The agency hadn't properly explained...

...that she would actually be meeting
a blind date

The carrots had a pea up against the wall...

The blind date and his faithful cauli...

...became inseparable companions

The walnut wasn't sure whether this was just a splitting headache...

...or something a little more serious

The best thing about Eddie's new job was the huge celery...

The boss walked into the meeting room
and reiterated that budgets must be slashed...

Eddie's country cousin
was a closet cannibal...

Without warning, the Red Onions went on the warpath...

The peas suddenly realised...

...the promised package trip
to Iceland was a con

The sage and onions were looking at a fate even worse than a fate worse than death...

Hazel handed in her notice, because she was tired of working for peanuts....

